Mr. William Harcourt, who so ably took the part of Colonel Prescotl last season, gave the same finished performance last evening. Miss Minnie Dupree, as Sucon, capituted the audience with the archness, cuteness, naturalness and simplicity with which she portrayed the ingenuous Southern maid. Miss Haslom and Miss Wilson, and Mr. Mandeville sustained their characters well. The entertainment as a whole was very satisfactory. W. C. T. U. CONVENTION was very satisfactory.

The Grand was well filled last night The newly organized W. C. T. U. of Belmont county, met at the Y. M. C. A parlors in Bridgeport last Wednesday present from the local unions. Lide Halloway presided at the organ, Mrs. Battelle, of Bellaire, offered the opening prayer and Miss Minnie Alexander read the Scripture lesson. Her brief exposition was clear, and her interpretation of its spirit and teachings so impressive that much of the harmony of the business meeting, which followed, was due to the feeling of fraternal affection which it awakened. Miss Anna E. Albert, President of the County Union, gave a graphic account of the State convention, which was supplemented by Mrs. Thoraton Rosefer, of Bellaire. The lines of work to be pursued next year were discussed, and from the forty-one departments only those which could be done efficiently were chosen. Mrs. J.C. McDonald, President of Bridgeport Union, read a bright paper and Mrs. Battelle made a report of the history of temperance work in Lide Halloway presided at the organ. morrow night.

RHEA AS JOSEPHINE.

The sale of reserved seats for the appearance at the Opera House next Monday night of M'lle Rhea in her latest and greatest success, "Josephine, Empress of the French," will commence at House's music store this morning. The outlook is that the sale will be a large one. An exchange has the following to say about the star and the play: "Rhea, as Josephine, was magnificent. The interest which this clever woman has in the part was shown in her work. Her acting in the second, third and fourth acts was a revelation. In depicting the character of Josephine the author has given us the loving, affectionate wife only. We are shown her in all the nobility of her strong nature and pure womanliness. It was not Rhea but Josephine that we say last night. The of Bridgeport Union, read a bright paper and Mrs. Battelle made a report of the history of temperance work in Bellaire that was especially interesting. It brought out the fact that the Bellaire and Martin's Ferry Unions are the oldestin the county and are cotemporaneous, both having existed since the "crusade."

Mrs. Smith, President of the Martin's Ferry Union, reported that an Industrial School will be opened in that place next Saturday. Mrs. Dr. Alexander. of St. Clairsville, wanted to know if a union joining the county union would be required to support a Third Party. The question led to a spicy but good-humored discussion, resulting in a final decision that the county union must be non-committal on suffrage, non-sectarian and non-partisan, thus giving scope for individual elfort and freedom of thought, and that for the coming year at least, the work will be entirely along the lines of Christian work and charity. A vote of thanks was returned to Mrs. Albert and Mrs. now traveling under the management of Mr. Matt H. McNabb, of this city, gives every indication at this time of being a memorable one. Crowded houses are looked for at each performance, and those desiring seats will do well to secure them at Welr's carly. The skit or play, is one of those roaring forces where a slender plot serves as a farces where a slender plot serves as basis for some good singing and dancing and no end of funny situations. The skit has been revised and is full of new vote of thanks was returned to Mrs.
Albert and Mrs. Maxwell for the evangelistic work done by them through the summer. The convention adjourned to meet in Bellaire on the third Thursday in January, 1890. Nothing special was done at last evening's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. Those who were present in-formally discussed several interesting topics connected with with the city's growth and prosperity,
